

Letter to your future self

Guidance

Writing a letter to your future self is quite a tricky idea and may require some input and discussion first.

The idea is that the letter is placed in an envelope and the envelopes placed inside a box/chest until July the following year. In July, the letters are handed back for the children to read and reflect on their achievements over the year.

Things that could be included in the letter:

- Concerns about the new year
- Aspirations for the new year
- Encouragement for the future
- Motivations
- Congratulations for achievements in the past year

Children could make and decorate their own envelopes.

WAGOLL

Dear Megan,

Congratulations! You made it to the end of Y6 and you did it in style!

Our new class teacher has told us to write to ourselves in the future - is that weird or what? I have no idea what I want to tell me! Anyhow, he - Mr Bronx, the new teacher - said we should write about things that worry us about going into Y6 - so here goes.

SATs are a big thing in Y6 and you have to work really, really hard all the time - sounds no fun at all - so, yeah, I'm worried about those. Hope I didn't mess up too much - future Megan, I'm sorry if I did.

Residential - soooooo very excited about this - climbing, canoeing, midnight feasts - what's not to like? I expect we'll have had loads of fun! Go us!

Secondary school - this is a huge worry - which school will I go to? Will all my friends be there too? Really worried about all the new teachers - just 1 new one this year and that's scary enough!

WAGOLL [continued]

Mr Bronx is our new teacher - he's new to the school too, so no handy hints from his previous class. He looks kinda strict; odd hair too, like some surfer dude. We better stay on the right side of him!!

Now he says we have to write about aspirations - dunno what they are. Bronx says they are our hopes. I hope we have a fabulous last year at primary. I want to be a House Captain, I want to have loads of sleepovers. I hope that when you look at this, future Megan, that you are pleased with how things turned out!

Well, future Megan, we are at the end of Y6 - how are you feeling? Sad? Excited? Worried? I guess we'll be mainly excited. Bet you cry buckets at the Leavers show! Chin up!

Remember how we always smile and carry on, even when things are tough?

We are a star! Love you or is it me?

Loads of Love Megan

